

Happy Birthday, Deva Prabha.

Today isn't just another date on the calendar, it's the day someone genuinely rare came into this world. Someone whose presence feels warm even from miles away. Someone who laughs softly, cares quietly, and unknowingly makes the world around her a little gentler.

You deserve all the good things life can offer the peace you're searching for, the success you've worked for, and the happiness you don't even ask for. I'm grateful that our paths crossed the way they did, grateful that I got to know you, and even more grateful that you exist exactly as you are.

I hope this year brings you everything you've dreamed of and everything you didn't know you needed.

You're special. More than you realise. And today, I'm just happy you were born.

And... I love you quietly, sincerely, and in a way that feels right. 💕